

PRINCIPAL REPORT

As we finish our second week of remote learning, I once again would like to thank everyone for their support. Thank you so much, for working with us to try to provide our children with a continuation of their learning. We truly appreciate that this is not easy and know that you are doing your very best to continue the learning opportunities that we provide.

As I have continued to say to parents who are struggling, do your best. If the work is too hard and your child can't do it, contact your child's teacher for support or provide your child with an alternative. These alternatives could be helping to cook dinner, playing outside in the garden, writing the shopping list, watching ABC Education on TV and building something with lego. There are so many alternatives that are also learning opportunities. Be comfortable saying you have done your best. We will be happy with this as we are also doing our best in these challenging times and may not always get it completely right.

Thank you to all of the parents who have sent our teachers positive messages via email. They are working hard to adapt to this new method of teaching and really appreciate the positive encouragement. Please remember that our teachers are there to support you via email with any of your questions or concerns or contact the school to speak to a member of the leadership team.

PHOTOS FOR THE NEWSLETTER

Being at school is just not the same without the smiling faces of our staff and students. We are missing you all and looking forward to the day we can welcome you all back. In the meantime we want to see the smiling faces of your child/children learning from home. Please email us one photo of your child working and learning from home so we can share these in our newsletter. Please email tyabb.ps@education.vic.gov.au with the subject—photo for newsletter.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Can the school support my child with a computer or ipad?

Last term our teachers asked parents to indicate to us whether their child had internet access and access to a device (ipad and/or computer). We have collated this information and are about to provide devices to students who do not have any access. Once we have done this we will then consider families that do not have enough devices for each of their children. We will be asking for more specific information via an email that is going out to each family in the coming days. Having this information will also help us if we are fortunate enough to receive additional devices from the State Government. As mentioned above if you do not have access or a device, teachers will always provide an alternative arrangement.

What if I don't know how to use the digital platform or just can't keep up with the online side of learning?

Please ask for support from your child's teacher. We will always provide a non digital option on the weekly plan. Paper versions will also be available from outside of the office on request.

Can I come in to change my child's readers?

No sorry. Unfortunately with the contagious nature of the virus it is not safe to have multiple people touching the books. We appreciate that this is frustrating and encourage you to use the books you have at home, reading eggs or other online reading resources. We apologise for this but hope you will understand the reasons why.

Will my child fall behind?

We are all working very hard to make sure that this does not happen. If your child does miss key concepts we will revise these when we return and provide additional support where needed. Remember that a pandemic virus has caused this, not your child, child's teacher or the challenges that you are having supporting their learning.

ANZAC DAY – Saturday 25th April 2020

Anzac Day will be very different this year. We usually celebrate this as a country with memorials and marches as well as special sporting events and time reminiscing about this iconic Australian event in history.

With COVID 19 and Isolation restrictions we can't commemorate at school but you could choose to commemorate in a different way. We have included some things you can do at home as well as some great links for educational clips and stories to help your child understand the historical importance of this day.

HOW DO I EXPLAIN ANZAC DAY?

ANZAC Day is Australia and New Zealand's national day of remembrance for all soldiers who have fought and died in wars and conflicts around the world. Every year on the 25th of April, people in both countries gather for services at dawn, as well as for parades and ceremonies throughout the day. This year some of these ceremonies will be televised so you can still participate and show your respects.

Read on for more ANZAC Day facts about the ANZACs and why this day is so important for Australians and New Zealanders.

ANZAC DAY FACTS FOR PRIMARY SCHOOL KIDS

- The ANZACS landed on the Gallipoli Peninsula in Turkey on the 25th April 1915. This day is now known as ANZAC Day.
- ANZAC stands for Australia and New Zealand Army Corps.
- The term 'ANZACS' is used to refer to Australian and New Zealand soldiers who fought in World War 1.
- World War 1 began in August 1914 when Britain and Germany declared war on each other. Australia and New Zealand followed Britain into war.
- At the time of World War 1, Australia had only been a country for 13 years. World War 1 is seen as an important moment in Australia's history.
- The Gallipoli Peninsula is very near the ancient city of Troy.
- The battle at Gallipoli lasted 8 months, with more than 11,000 ANZACS dying and 23,500 being wounded in battle.
- All ANZAC soldiers who fought at Gallipoli were volunteers – they weren't drafted into service like soldiers were in other countries.
- Wives of ANZAC soldiers made what we now know as ANZAC biscuits for their husbands. Since they contained no eggs or milk, they had a long shelf life. The soldiers ate them instead of bread.
- ANZAC Day wasn't officially a public holiday in Australia or New Zealand until 1921.
- The first dawn service was in 1923. Dawn is significant because this is when the soldiers landed at Gallipoli. It is also considered the best time to attack in battle.
- Other countries who celebrate ANZAC Day include Samoa, Tonga, and the Cook Islands. There are also services in France, England, and at the Gallipoli Peninsula in Turkey.
- While ANZAC Day was originally meant to honour the soldiers who fought and died at Gallipoli, it is now used to honour all soldiers who have fought and died.
- Poppies and rosemary are worn on the day as reminders of the loss of all soldiers in all wars.
- Alec Campbell was the last known Australian survivor of the Gallipoli campaign. He passed away in 2002.

CSEF (CAMPS, SPORTS, EXCURSION FUND)

If your circumstances have changed and you now hold a Centrelink Health Care Card or Pensioner Concession Card you may be eligible for CSEF for your child.

Please email to the school at tyabb.ps@education.vic.gov.au with a scanned copy or photo of your card and your students details and we will apply on your behalf.

If you have previously applied through Tyabb Primary we have already reapplied on your behalf for this year.

Please contact the office if you require any further information. Thank you.

Prep 2021 Enrolment Information

As you will understand, school tours have been postponed until further notice due to the coronavirus. In the meantime we are still taking enrolments and really need to know how many siblings will be starting at our school in 2021. We need this information to be able to calculate how many additional places we will have for new enrolments.

To support us with this, our enrolment packs and forms are now available from the office. We have placed them in a box outside of the office to ensure we are practicing social distancing. If you are driving past please pick up a pack and return the completed enrolment form, birth certificate, immunisation record and coloured permission forms as soon as possible. Our office is still open between 8.30 and 4.00pm.

If you are unable to pick up a pack, please respond to an email coming out soon asking us for the names of any sibling enrolments for 2021. We will then reserve a pack for you for when school resumes. Please don't hesitate to contact the office on 5977 4584 if you have any further questions.

Parent Health and Wellbeing

There is no doubt that more anxiety is creeping into our everyday lives at the moment. One of the most important roles in life is being a parent and this role is being tested immensely in 2020.

Well done to each and every one of you who is doing the best that you can when conducting home learning. Many of you will be juggling both home learning and work, so for that you need to give yourself a pat on the back.

Dealing with Anxiety: tips for parents

Anxiety and worry about parenting is normal. The problem is when worry or anxiety becomes extreme. Then it can get in the way of your health and your daily life. It can even stop you from being the parent you want to be. That's why dealing with anxiety is important.

Symptoms of anxiety

Some common symptoms of anxiety are:

- finding it hard not to worry
- feeling restless
- having trouble relaxing or sleeping
- having trouble concentrating
- getting frustrated
- feeling your heart racing.

It's normal to have some of these symptoms from time to time. But if you're feeling a lot of these symptoms and it's making it hard for you to get on with your daily life, it might be time to find ways of dealing with anxiety.

Dealing with anxiety: everyday tips

There are a couple of things you can do if you have a situation or problem that's causing you anxiety:

- Give yourself time to calm down before you respond to the situation. For example, if your child comes out of school and tells you someone is being mean to her, you might feel worried. Instead of seeing the teacher straight away, it might be best to go home and talk with your child. If you're still worried the next day, make an appointment to see the teacher.
- Try to focus only on the situation and deal with other things later. For example, if you feel anxious because your child has a fever, just focus on helping your child feel better and making an appointment with the GP. You can worry about things like the groceries or the washing later.

You can also take some simple steps to cope with anxiety more generally:

- Talk to someone about how you're feeling – your partner, a family member or trusted friend.
- Join a local parents group or playgroup to connect with other parents who might be in a similar situation and can share advice from their own experiences.

Keep a diary or journal to record your feelings. You might be able to see a pattern in the things that upset you.

Breathing and relaxation

If you're feeling stressed or anxious, you might notice that you're doing shallow breathing (or chest breathing) – that is small, short breaths. If you're breathing more deeply, you'll notice that your abdomen rises and falls. This is more relaxing.

There are many different breathing exercises that you can use for relaxation. Here are some breathing exercises that you can do anywhere, anytime that you feel like you need to calm down.

Basic breathing exercise

This breathing exercise aims to get you breathing more deeply and feeling more relaxed:

- Sit, stand or lie down so that you're comfortable.
- Close your eyes.
- Count to five as you slowly breathe in through your nose.
- When you feel that your lungs are full, hold the breath while counting to five. If you can hold your breath a few seconds longer, try to do so. This is often the hardest part of the breathing exercise to start with.
- Now slowly breathe out through your mouth, again counting to five.
- Repeat this exercise another two times (three times in total).

Return to your normal breathing pattern. If you still feel tense or anxious, do the exercise again.

Breathing exercise to release muscle tension

With this breathing and relaxation technique, you start by closing your eyes.

While you breathe in and out slowly and deeply, scan your body from top to bottom. Check for any tension or discomfort. You'll probably notice that you're feeling tension somewhere – perhaps in your neck, chest, legs or shoulders.

Now visualise breathing slowly into the areas of your body where you've noticed tension or discomfort. Think of it as a warm, healing breath.

Welfare

Breathing and stretching exercise

Here's a 10-second breathing exercise that combines breathing and stretching:

- Stand up straight. As you breathe in through your nose, raise your arms up over your head and touch your palms together.
- As you release the breath through your mouth, turn the palms of your hands outwards.

Slowly bring your arms down while stretching out your hands and fingers at the same time.

Simple stress management tips

Get to know what makes you stressed

If you know what your stress triggers are, it can be easier to deal with stress. You might be able to avoid stressful situations, or prepare yourself. A useful exercise is to write down what makes you feel stressed.

For example, your child crying for a long time might be very stressful for you. If it's important for you to be on time, you might find it stressful when you can see the clock ticking but your children are moving slowly. If you love a clean and tidy house but no longer have one, this could be stressful.

Positive thinking and self-talk

Unhelpful thinking makes it harder to deal with stressful things – for example, in a stressful situation you might think, 'What's wrong with me? I can't get things together' or 'I'm a loser'.

But you can change unhelpful thinking into realistic helpful thinking and positive self-talk, which are good ways to deal with stress. They increase your positive feelings and therefore your ability to cope with stressful situations.

To put realistic thinking and self-talk into action, try the following:

- Challenge unhelpful thoughts about things that cause you stress. For example, your child cries in the supermarket. You think, 'Everyone will think I'm a bad parent'. But you could ask yourself, 'How do I know that people will think this?', 'Would I think this about someone else?' or 'What can I do to deal with this problem?'.
- Be realistic about what you can do. For example, it might be too much to expect your child never to cry in the supermarket. But perhaps you could change the situation so the crying is less likely to happen. Would your child cry less if you went shopping at a different time of day, perhaps after he's had a nap?

- Develop positive self-talk statements that help you. For example, you could say to yourself, 'The shopping won't take much longer – I can get through it', 'People are minding their own business – they're not looking at us', 'Who cares what other people think?', 'I can do this' or 'I will stay calm'.
- Know your limits and choose your battles. If you feel irritated or find an experience overwhelming it might be best to try to avoid the source of stress if possible. For example, try online shopping if supermarket shopping is too hard for you and your child.

The day I smuggled my alien to school

"Meep, meep!" What on earth was that? "Meep, Meep!" there it goes again. Suddenly, out my pile of toys came a glow, on, off. On, off! I crawled on the floor steadily towards the glow, and picked up the toy. Wow I'd never seen anything like it. Flung on there is something inside. I think it's a... a... alien! It crawled out and jumped into my chest and hugged me. I thought it jumped onto my back, gnawing under the covers. I guess it didn't want to be seen. I had and who knew Mum would do with it. What would Mrs Rogers do with it, who knows what! I could take it to school or stuff it in my cupboard, but Mum would probably find it there.

Harriet creating ...The Mount Martha Sunset.

Jett creating a beautiful chalk rainbow and a gorgeous autumn leaf mobile.

Ruby K drew herself doing a handstand!

Before the holidays the grade 5 and 6 children worked on self portraits and punked themselves using a range of paints and markers. I thought you might like to see some that were put up for display (you'll get to see them in real life when we get back to school !) The idea behind this was to point out that you should always treat people with kindness and respect regardless of what they look like and that how you look doesn't change you as a person. Kindness always.

I really hope that you are all safe and smiling at home. I'm going a little bit bonkers but I have my new cat to keep me company. Last night she decided to jump onto the kitchen bench while I was making myself a pizza and landed "plop" in the middle of the tomato pesto base. The pizza base fell onto the floor (big mess) and when I looked at Kenzie she was covered in red tomato pesto! She licked herself clean thank goodness. I've put a picture of her curled up on my couch for you to see.

I really hope you've got time to make some art while you're at home. If you do, ask your mum or dad or nan or next door neighbour, to email me a photo of it. My email address is sharon.wright@education.vic.gov.au

It makes my heart happy to see your work.
